"Helping to put kids first"

a guide for workers in children's contact services

Written by David Cherry with Deborah Davison

This guide has been written for workers who supervise contact between parents and their children and who facilitate changeovers. The aim of the booklet is to assist workers in understanding the child, the parent and the interaction between the parent and child. It is hoped that the suggestions on communicating with the child, planning before a contact visit, worker safety and how to intervene during a contact visit when there are concerns, will be helpful.
